

Mediterranean: current and prospective trends

Register HERE by June 15th, 2021
Concept note and Agenda

On June 22nd, 2021 from 10:30 to 13:00 (CEST) it will be held - online - the Presentation of the UfM Report “The Internationalisation of Higher Education in the Mediterranean: current and prospective trends”.

In an intent to address regional needs and pave the way for a change of scale in the support mechanisms, UNIMED carried out a study launched by the Union for the Mediterranean (UfM), aimed at being an effective tool for policy-makers and other stakeholders. While adopting a comprehensive approach regarding internationalisation, the study presents an overview of the current regional situation in terms of higher education cooperation, mapping key features and patterns specific to the region.

The study’s recommendations are directed towards international organizations, governments, universities, and the civil society, demonstrating that only a joint effort shall guarantee the strengthening of this international dimension of education. They intend to provide stimulus for further joint discussion concerning tangible initiatives and projects, generating operational solutions to the obstacles identified in the analysis of the current situation, opening up a roadmap for change.

The report will be available for download starting on 22 June at <https://ufmsecretariat.org/info-center/publications/>.

The event is open to international organisations, government bodies, universities and civil society. It will be conducted in English, French, and Arabic, with interpretation available.

The event will be conducted in English, French, and Arabic, with interpretation available.

A significant participation is fundamental since the report will guide our joint work for the next few years. Participants are requested to kindly register through an online form, by 15 June 2021. The connection details to join the session through Zoom will be sent the day before the event, only to registered participants.

The event will be live broadcasted at the UfM YouTube Channel.

More information is available here.